There won't be another Presidential election until 1952. But next year's Congressional elections will . hold far more importance than they usually do, as an indication of what is to come, and as a test of power between strongly divergent philosophies of government. The main interest will center in Ohio, where Senator Taft will run again. This contest will have a truly national significance. For Taft has clearly proven himself to be the most adroit and effective opponent Mr Truman has.

As everyone knows, the Truman legislative program has fallen on on his request for repeal of the of the Columbia Valley Administration being approved by this Congress is so slim as to be almost non-existent. ### WHAT DO THE PEOPLE THINK?

If I were a Congressman, I can imagine that most of my waking hours would be spent wondering whether or not I had correctly underatood the will of the people and whether they understood the nature of the Issues before Congress. I would be much concerned about the position of the people in my district, particularly on national issuch that affect all of America. In fact, the thinking of people throughout the country would be like meat and drink to me.

I am happy to believe this is the case with most of our Congressmen. Of course, there is a chance that the people might be wrong. An informed Congressman will then act upon his own convictions, when the test comes. But more often than not, I believe we can safely feel that American opinion is informed public opinion. If this be so, then public opinion is indeed worth the having to any Congress-

On the Bandwagon

Once in a while we are fooled into believing that those who make the most noise about something are an index to what is in the minds of most of the people, Those who plend special causes are generally the most noisy. Sometimes these groups, with spokesmen on all sides, get the support of the lean people on the economic cenpublic. Sometimes they do not. At any rate, what our Congressmen need to do is get the actual thinking of the people, not just listen to the fellow who has the most to say.

There's the National Education Association, For years on end they have whooped it up for "federal ald" to education. Where has it got them? Well, a lot of good people have climbed on their bandwagon, and they have made plenty | Ohle senator, These observers beof headway in the very halls of lieve that Senator Taft built him Congress. Federal aid has become a "political" lasue, N. E. A. a long | con of his victory over the admintime ago turned on the heat, and woe to anybody who opposes them! What People Think

What is public opinion on "federal aid?" Recently, the Detroit News and the Omaha World-Herald saked their readers to answer some questions, One was: "Do you favor federal aid to education?" In Detroit, a great industrial center, the vote was more than three to one against federal ald. In Omaha, center of a huge farming area, more than ten to one were opposed to it. In both places only 2,807 votes were for federal ald, 12,279 sgalnat

Readers of these two great newspapers spoke out, on other questions involving more federal spending and more control of people. They wrote to Congress. They were opposed nearly ten to one to the administration's housing bill, just passed. They opposed the Brannan farm plan 20 to one. In Nebrasks, fewer than 100 favored Listen to the People

By a big margin, readers of the ernment spending and to make the along lines proposed by the Hoover Commission report. The score was more than 20 to one, on both questions together. In Nebraska, only token sympathy could be found far: vering more laxes to pay for the Truman social program. All this leads me to wonder whether our political leaders are not pretty far

DO YOU WANT TO organize a club, or get people to work for some cause? Half the battle is in making them feel

Here's an example: H. Everett Pope was head man of the Oklahoma School of Business, Tulsa, Oklahoma; he built it up from a pup. Everett liked to puff a pipe; he smoked more than the old Dutch characters in Rip Van Winkle. And he had such a good time puffing that he decided he would like to get up a club of other men in Tulsa who liked to shoot out So he organized the Pipe Smokers' Club of America, got the papers ready and all that. Then he took a list of selected names D. Carnegle and sent them a letter telling them that there was to be a meeting, at noon, in the dining room of the chamber of commerce. He knew that the men would come piling in. Then he would tell them the purposes of the organization, they would elect officers and they would have a fine group . . . all pipe puffers. It sounded dandy.

At noon that day he went to the dining-room, thought he would get there a little early to receive the other men. Well, he got there plenty early. No one was there. Finally a man came in and apologetically slunk into a corner, smoking a cigarette. After a time another lone trapper showed up and settled down behind his beard.

The three-had lunch and then faded away like mist before the morning sun. The club seemed doomed to failure.

But Everett still believed in the idea; he loved his pipe as a sailor loves shore leave. He thought he'd try it again.

This time he sent out a letter which said, "I am pleased to inform you that you've been elected president of the Pipe Smokers' Club of America." Then told where the meeting was to be . . . in the same place.

It happened just as you think. That dining-room had as many men in it as a farmer's smokehouse has hams . . . all hanging in suspense of what was going to happen. He explained the purpose of the meeting and told them of the uniqueness of the idea . . . a club where

The American Life Convention, Life Insurance Association of America and National Association of Life Underwriters, declared temporary disability insurance would be impossible to administer on a national scale. The extension would provide maternity benefits ranging from $8 to $15 per week for "every female individual" up to a maximum of 14 weeks provided she had been employed with social security coverage regularly for a period in advance of application.

The measure also would provide increasing the payrell inx to two per cent, instead of one per cent on both employers and employees, The United States chamber of commerce favors a 50 per cent increase in social security besettis while labor organisations want the benefits doubled.

Farm organizations agree that farm workers ought to be covered. but there is a divergence of opinion on the matter of covering farm operators, The National Farmers Union want all to be compelled to join while other farm organizations favor voluntary coverage for farm owners. Organizations of teachers and other public employees are seeking to keep their retirement program separate from social security although they favor social security benefits for public employees not covered by existing systems.

Other organizations seeking to be covered include domestic workera, employees of cooperatives, churches, colleges, social service agencies and other non-profit organizations; wholesale commission salesmen, laundry agent drivers and national bank amplayees.

OUR GOVERNMENT, which, like all who oppose state control is unfavorably disposed toward the present Spanish regime, does not believe that a loan to Spain would be advisable.

What does our government expect to happen when Franco falls? Does it really beleive the populace will hold a free election and vote into office a group of patriotic, liberty-loving citizens who will formulate a constitution something like ours and live happily ever after? Maybe so! It seems to have been alightly in error anent far-castern matters—as witis happening, and will obviously continue to happen.

Anyone who knows his Spanish civil war can visualize the bloody result if the Anti-Communist Franco government is allowed-AT THIS TIME-to collapse. T YOU AREN'T CAREFUL how you enum your elgarette butt. some psychologist may read your innermost longings As everybody these days is an amateur psychologist, your every smoke is in danger of becoming a Freudian session.

This has been brought about by experiments, now underway on the Bennington (Vermont) college campus, using cigarette butts to discover the hidden personality traits of smokers. Mrs. Eric Fromm, wife of the noted psychologist who teaches at Bennington, is conducting the experiments.

Dr. Edward T. Hall, anthropologist and cultural psychologist at the college, has analyzed some of Mrs. Fromm's findings,

For instance, Hall says, if you are a buit masher, one who puts out the fire by crushing the elgarette viciously into the tray, you are "apparently holding back a great deal of hostility."

If you progress past this stage and actually press the butt into a fellow man's face, you aren't withholding as much hostility as in the previous example. You may be withholding some, it is granted, because it could be that you'd prefer to lop off his

About the same holds true for those who push the burning butt into the wallpaper and furniture before throwing it away Psychologists ignore these persons. They merely dislike their landlords and don't mind showing it. No subconscious hostility here.

The person who throws his cigarette into a tray and lets it burn out as it will is the type who has no concern for other men after their usefulness is over. An advanced example of this type is one who lets his eigarette burn out on a desk, a burau or a window ledge.

The person who lets it burn out hanging unpuffed from his lips is unclassified, but psychologists suspect that he has no concern for enyone either-not even himself.

The smoker who tosses his elgaretts butt casually on the floor does not necessarily show signs of improper upbringing,

The Inventor and Job Maker Dependent On Gold Coin Standard of Money

by PHILIP M. McKENNA, President of Konnametal Inc., Latrobe, Penna,

How do new jobs come up in your town? Somebody has an idea, Very often it's an invention. Sometimes it's what we may call an innovation, that is, trying out something brand new in your town. If the inventor or innovator has enough money on hand, already saved for such an opportunity, he is able to buy what is needed to try it and to pay people to operate the idea to see if it works out and pays off.

When Henry Bessemer in 1856 believed it practicable to make steel by blowing air through mol-ten pig iron he had already earned ten pig iron he had already earned and saved considerable sums of money by use of his earlier invention, notably the manufacture of bronze paint. He says in his Autobiography, "Having thought over thoroughly the risks and powerful opposition I had to fight, I came to the conclusion that it was my duty to settle the sum of £10,000 ($50,000) on my wife, under trustees, so that I could not be ruined absolutely in the further pursuit of my invention or by litigation in defense of my patent rights. After this investment I had still £12,000 ($60,000) to spend in perfecting this investment I had still £12,000 ($50,000) to spend in perfecting my process if found necessary."

Within 5 years of this decision over 1,000 men were employed making Bessemer steel, and in constructing new furnaces and Ressemer converters and within 12 years over 20,000 persons in various companies in England had jobs that hadn't existed before, and steel was plentiful enough to build railways and bridges of high strength compared to wrought iron or to wood.

Now soppose Bessemer and his pariner at the start had not had

Now soppose Bessemer and his partner at the start had not had the £12,000 or that it had been in irredeemable paper money deteriorating so that it was only one third enough in buying power in 1856 compared to its value when saved, ten years proviously. Bessemer could not have made the attempt and built his first furnace. At the risk of being personal I'll tell you my own story as an inventor. In 1857 at the little town of Latrobe, Pengsylvania, I had of Latrobe, Pennsylvania, I had made on invention of a new tool material, which I called Kenna-metal. I believed it would solve metal. I believed it would solve the problem of providing America with a hard carbide tool material which would cut steel, in lathes, boring mills and milling machines with three times the speed feasible with then known tool steel. I had wan then known tool steel. I had saved up $71,590 during the many years I had worked as a metaliurgist and chemist. I resolved to risk it in trying out my inventions. I storage garage in our the established carbide industry employed 12 men in 1938 and started to make and sell "Kennametal." The first year I did not go "broke" although no profit was made. The second year I had proved the superiority of our steel-cutting metal in so many shops that we had 50 people making tools from it and that year earned enough money to expand earned enough money to expand operations. By 1940 our sales reached $5,000,000 a year, the cost of cemented hard carbide was reduced to one-third of what it had been when I started and we were employing 300 people who thus had an opportunity to earn and save in our fown when they hadn't had an opportunity to earn and save in our town when they hadn't had these jobs before that.

But if I hadn't had the initial cash to risk, in 1938, or if it had been deteriorating in value as rapidly as money has gone down in buying power recently I shouldn't have been able to make the start Thus jobs may come from savings in the hands of workers and inin the hands of workers and in-ventors. A grave danger threatens all who earn and attempt to save today. America is not on the gold standard so far as American citi-zens within the country are concerned. A thousand dollars saved in 1938 is today worth only about one-third as much in buying power one-third as much in buying power as it was then. Suppose my invention had not been thought of until 1949. Then my $71,500 would have been insufficient to pay the workers to construct my furnaces and equipment. I could not have started with only $18,000 in buying power. A deteriorating dollar stops the opportunities for new jobs in Amerportunities for new jobs in America. Restoring the gold coin standard of money in the U.S.A. now will stop deterioration of the buying power of the dollar. This will reslore the confidence of savers and enable inventors and innova-tors to lay aside money for their useful projects which in turn spells jobs and opportunities for many. What can YOU do about it?

YOU can convince Congress! Congress will not re-establish the gold standard until Congressmen con be made to realize that the gold standard is what Americans want. YOU can write to your United Sintes Representatives and Sena-tors. YOU can discuss the aubject with your friends, your business associates, your civic groups, your labor unions, your Grange asso-ciations, your church groups.

Discussion brings enlightenment! Enlightenment will restore security to the savings of every American. Form your own group for discussion of the GOLD STAND-ARD. For literature and suggeslons, write to The Economists National Committee on Monetary Policy, One Madican Avenue, New York 10, N. Y., or Philip M. Me-Kenns, Latrobe, Pa.

TIM TAKES IT BY RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

(A Short Story)

TIM LANGDON PAUSED at the vanished. Yanking out his service corner of Market and Canal streets. Directly across the street from him the pale rays from a street lamp fillered down through the layers of log. Tim unhooked the thong of his nightstick from about his wrist, and took a firm grasp on the handle, The solid feel of the wood against his palm was reassuring. Yet in spite of this, in spite of the pressure made by the service gun against his right hip, he felt a cold prickling along his spinal cord.

Sergeant Morlarty had told him that the Canal street beat would be his initiation to the force-a sort of test to find out whether or not he could take it. If a man could handle Canal street he could handle anything; that was the slogen of the force.

Tim held his watch so that it eaught the feeble rays of the street lamp. One fifteen, Suddenly he stiffened. Across the street a skulking figure appeared in the glimmer of the street lamp, hesitated a moment, then disappeared. Silence. Slowly Tim relaxed. Nothing wrong with that. Nothing unusual about a man walking along the street at 1:15 in the morning. Distantly he heard the mulfied, deep-toned whiatle of a river boat. He gripped his club firmly and started across the street, annoyingly conscious of Impending danger,

The roar of an approaching automobile smacked against his ears. He jumped to avoid being hit as it through the fog-filtered light and | feeling no pain, nor numbress,

A serie of terror chilled his blood. The knowledge that the door hadn't shut on its own accord caused his hand to tremble. He steadled himself. Slowly he began to move along the wall. A sense of not being alone possessed him, a sense of impending danger and threat in the darkness that lay about him, He thought: "I was a fool to rush in here blindly. This may be my first and last day on the force,'

Then he remembered his flashlight and fumbled for it. Its white rays slashed through the darkness, The hall was empty, but a rustling came from the top of the flight of stairs directly in front of him. He heard a mulfled curse and a voice

Tim's blood froze, Capeki The mere name gave him an overpowering sense of dread. Capek hated coppers. If Capek were at the head of the stairs it meant-Tim fought against the urge to flee, to rush loward the blessed security of the murky street.

A picture of Sergt, Moriarty's smile crossed his mind. He understood now what that smile had meant. It was a sneer, not a smile. It meant that Moriarty believed he couldn't take it. Tim's mouth set grimly. So that's what they thought of him, cu? Well, he'd show 'em! "Come on down, Capeki I'm

WHEN CLEANING a rug on the floor of a room, sweep from the edges of the rug toward the center of the rug, so that neither dirt nor crumbs will fall off the rug or into the cracks of the floor.

Varnished woodwork reacts best to cleaning with an oiled cloth, but it should then be rubbed with a soft, dry cloth.

Painted woodwork should be washed with clear, warm water, except when dirty; then, use a mild soup with the warm water. Too hard scrubbing will mar the paint, so it's better to clean more frequently, than to concentrate all your forces on one cleaning.

Let hot water run from the faucet into the sink for several minutes after each dish washing, This flushes away particles of

have been too busy to acquaint themselves with school regulations for entrance, attendance and health, These used to be covered in "notes from teacher" which the child brought home, but how much simpler to have them in dren like to feel that their parents are well informed and not dependent, as they themselves are, on instruction from a The pamphlet should inform parents as to services provided by the school such as health examinations, hearing and sight tests. It would be well to describe these in detail to show what they cover and what they don't cover. For example, parents or beginners might prefer to have their own eye doctor test the child's visual skills. The eyes of many six-year-olds are not ready for the near point concentration reading requires.

THIS SEPTEMBER will find an- sions at this task before they other record-breaking crop of have developed visual maturity first-year school children starting may prevent normal seeing in off on the great adventure of be- later life. For seeing is a complicated process that requires coordination of many muscles and nerves. These have to be learned, and acquired in orderly sequence -there's no safe skipping of steps in the development of visual skills.

Since school administration has changed greatly in the last 20 years, it would be helpful for the pamphlet to describe the work of the principal, teachers and service personnel. There will be less annoyance over being asked to provide money for locker keys, gym shoes, special notebooks, etc. if parents have an over-all picture in their minds of the school's plan of work.

Advice on helpful habits which school children should be encouraged to acquire will also be welcomed by most young parents. Regular hours for sleep, and plenty of it, is requisite for the school child. And skill in dressing himself gives the child's self-reliance a boost when he finds that he doesn't need teacher's help in getting coats off and on and overshoes sipped.

What with the excitement of being with strange boys and girls and leading the more circumscribed life of a school child, a calm unhurried atmosphere at home for the six to ten-year-old is more important than ever.

All these suggestions, and many others, can be fully explained in a pamphlet, or in a series of talks Forcing the eyes to long ses- to parents before school opens.
